1. On 10 May 1947 (approximately) General Imro, Acting Chief of Staff, of the Czechoslovak General Staff, conferred in Michalovce eastern Slovakia, with General Moser, Colonels Zelinski and Lubner (spelling uncertain), from Poland, in connection with the renewed activities of the Banderovci partisans. Moser commands eight Polish divisions which are assigned the task of cleaning out the partisans. The two others are divisional commanders. There are indications that the Banderovci are crossing the Czechoslovak border under Polish pressure.
2. General Imro reported to the General Staff that the partisans are under orders not to engage the Czechoslovak units. However, partisan prisoners are being handed over to the Poles under the bilateral agreement. Some elements in the General Staff feel that this arrangement should not obtain, since international conventions might be involved.
3. Minister of National Defense, General Ludvik Svoboda, reported the conference to the cabinet on 20 May 1947. The operation section of the General Staff is proceeding in its plans to alert one division in case the decision is taken to cooperate with the Poles.
